

There is a dedicated National Contact Point assigned to each programme. Their role is to support Irish participants in FP7 as much as possible and includes the following activities:

- Identification and profiling of potential participants
- Provision of information, advice, financial support and training
- Assistance with partner search activities
- Pre-submission support and evaluation
- Post call review, support and training
- On-going support on legal, contractual and IPR issues (for successful participants)
- On-going advice and support on next steps for successful and unsuccessful applicants
- You can find the relevant National contact point once you visit a specific programme area. Click here for a full list of the National Contact Points.

Brussels Office

Catriona Ward manages the Irish Liaison Office in Brussels on behalf of Enterprise Ireland. She is the contact point in Brussels for Irish R&D.

Catriona is also a member of IGLO, the Informal Group of Brussels-based R&D Liaison Offices. IGLO facilitates and enhances the interaction, information exchange and co-operation between its members, their national research systems and the relevant European institutions on EU RTD issues, with particular emphasis on FP7.

The office also offers many useful services including;

- Identification of, and introductions to, key EU Commission staff
- Information on latest trends in EU research such as the EIT
- Organising networking events of benefit to Irish companies / researchers
- Partner search facility through IGLO (see above)
- Representing and promoting Irish interests
